What is the CCI?

The Community Capacity Inventory (CCI) is an online survey that helps State Family Program Directors assess statewide family readiness needs. The CCI also helps National Guard and Air Guard Service members and spouses assess their own level of preparedness, and develop an action plan to enhance their readiness. CCI data is shared with Service representatives and partner service providers in order to improve the quality and quantity of resources available within communities.

Is This Required?

Your participation in the CCI is voluntary and the information you provide is anonymous.

Then why do it?

The CCI will enable program managers to more effectively implement Community Capacity Building initiatives such as outreach, counseling, education and resiliency skill building, and thereby improve the quality and accessibility of support services.

The primary purposes are to:

- Enable Service Members and Spouses to assess their readiness level and develop action plans to enhance readiness. CCI will also increase awareness of touch point resources such as Military OneSource and National Guard Family Assistance Centers.

- Provide family readiness program managers and other stakeholders with snapshots of Service Member and Family readiness, as well as community readiness. CCI will help identify support needs by state and region.
- Help Service leaders assess unit environments, Service Member and Family needs and location-specific support assets. It will also help identify service gaps and develop proactive support strategies.

How long is it?

The Service Member inventory consists of 99 questions, while the Spouse inventory consists of 101 questions. Each takes approximately 10-15 minutes to complete.

Do I Receive Any Results?

Upon CCI completion, you will receive an individual report of results, which includes scores for 23 indicators of military and family readiness and preparedness. You will receive information on how to interpret your scores. You will be directed to access Military OneSource and other Service specific resources to find more information on a wide variety of military life topics. You can print or email their individual readiness report.

How Do I Access It?

The CCI is accessible via computer. You just need internet access.
